Abner Chapman, Esq.—Dear Sir: About one year since I took charge of the steamer Frank, of the City of New York, and very recently we have applied your improved patent Whiel, put in the pace of the old style Wheel, and it affords me pleasure to say that after thoroughly testing the sains, it is qualities and capacities. I am convinced of its superiority in every particular. Your Wheel increases the speed of the boat at least three affles per hour more than we have been able to take the sain at any time stoce I have been in charge of her with the did Wheel, and I am warte of no other change to produce this result except this charge of Wheel. With the old Wheel the lost was constantly jarrang producing an unpleasant mouton in the immediate vicinity, and jar in other parts of the boat, but with the new Wheel, this jarring is entirely done away with, and little if any is produced by its revolutions; it enters the water amoutby, and while immersed, holds on without break his the construction of the Wheel, it is stronger than the old Wheel, and more effectual in backung water and leave liable to broken by coming in contain win in our or other doating substances, and will be quite as dirable if not more so than the present Wheels now in nee on other boats H I can be of any service to you in introducing so valuable an improvement, I shall be happy to do so. And if any persons wait to examine the Wheel, they can do so by calling on board the boat wheaver as it is the berth at the foot of King at, North River.

I sm., dear Str., yours truly,

I am, dear Sir, yours truly, PETER HAMMOND, No. 118 Variek et. PETER HAMMOND, No. 118 Variek st.

New York, April 8, 1847.

Anner Charman, esq.—Dear Sir: In regard to the operation of your improved PADDLE WHIEELS as applied to the Meanboat Frank, I would state that, not being in the city when the trial of the new Wheels was had, I cannot state from my own personal knowledge the amount of gain that was realized on and trial 120, bot, 1700, what I have seen in the short trial I willnessed prince beaving the city, I am much pleased with their repretation and am estatised there was a considerable gain in speed as well as a great improvement in the paddie's entering and leaving the water. I have full confidence in the statement mades by Captain Houmoud, in regard to the operation of said Wheel; also, 'regard them as being strong and durable.

Very muly yours, &c., WAL SEWELL, Engineer, Late owner of said steamboat Frank.

CPHRITUALISM — Mrs. CORA L. V. HATCH, who has been exching so much interest among the Spiritualiats of the city, is to speak to the Taberoucle FRIDAY EVENING. The proceeds of the leature Dr. Hatch is to give for the relief of the poor.

We quote the following extract from The Boston Gazette:
"Instruct — Such is the claim for the efforts of a young woman now with us, who, in a trance countion, as it is called, talks by the hour upon the most profound science, never lack ing a word, never making a mistake, and never repeating whis he has said before. We give it, without any disposition to make it more wonderful, deeming that if it be not inspiration, under which she speaks, it comes wonderfully near our idea of it. Lust Sunday evening she improvised a poem of an hour long, and it was started that she was speaking under the particular aid of Felicia Hemans.

She is a married hady, named Hatch, and is not yet 17 years old.

Sunday evening she improvised a poem of an hour long, and it was stated that she was speaking under the particular aid of Felicia Hemans.

She is a married hady, named Hatch, and is not yet 17 years old, with only such education as she acquired previous to her teath year, when she left school, which cannot be supposed to be equal to that of some of our learned people; yet she will hold a equal to that of some of our learned people; yet she will hold a discussion with the most profound upon their own ground, and throw, herself, the gannite tor them to take up. She is said to be entirely unconscioons while in the 'condition,' and that the elequence and ability which mark her performance are the impressions of minds out of the body, who use her as an instrument through which to communicate. We know nothing about this, but we have heard things from her lips which seemed beyond mere mortal power. In prayer, especially, she presents, or represents, a strength that can hardly be surpassed for sublimity. Her appearance during the exercise of her mission is that of one inspired. Each time of her speaking here a committee has been appointed to select the subject upon which not is to direct them, and the deepest and most perpexing themes have been chosen, and in every case she has succeeded admirative been chosen, and in every case she has succeeded admirative been chosen, and in every case she has succeeded admirative for the most of the every of all. This is no paid notice, but a tribute to the warderful woman who is atcomsting our citizens."

A Rec. Doctor of Divinity has engaged to meet Mrs. Hatch in discussion on that evening Admission 13 cents.

"A good many editions of Scott have been published, and we recollect many more expensive than this, but nothing so good in the way of an impression for the mass of readers; nothing so prefectly faultiers in its mechanical execution." [Evening Post. "Tickner & Fields announce a beautiful family edition of the Waverley Novels, in forty-eight lome volumes. From the specimens which we have seen of this work we can confidently recommend it. It is illustrated by designs from the most eminent artists, including Birket Foater, Dailey, Landseer, Harsey and Faed, in admirably executed steel curravings, and contains all the author's liest notes and corrections. The typography is in the style of simple elegance for which the Boston press is distinguabed. It is the intention of the publishers to issue two volumes every month, until the whole series is completed."

"This Household Edition of Scott is the most perfect thing possible to Art and Enterprise, and every family should own it."

[Home Journal.]

"The size of the volumes is just right; the binding admirable for its atrength as well as neatness; the paper excellent; the type clear and elegant; the illustrations executed in a tyle hourorable, in the highest degree, to the progress of American art. We rejoice to learn that the publishers are reaping the just harvest of this enterprise."

"This edition must, of necessity, from its cheapness and erillag merit, supersede all other editions which have been published in this country."

The new story will form an era in the the history of similar rubinations, combining, as it does, the most starting and yet beautiful incidence, founded up a one of the most starting and yet its first of the control o mend it to our fixed executive every published in this country.

The author is a lady distinguished as an ornament in the most refined circle of the South, and one who, while she comblies great power in the use of her pen and possesses a strong and nervous intellect, is still remarkable for delineating the loweliest scene of demestic life, and for her delineating the loweliest scene of demestic life, and for her delineating the loweliest scene of demestic life, and for her delineating the loweliest ment; and yet few authors of the sterner sex equal her in portraying those terrible pictures in which passion and the most intense emotions are bought into action.

The scene of this bravianing story opens upon an old an estral estate in Virgiula, and introduces characters in which are strongly compounded all the virtues and weaknesses of persons living under Republica in institutions, and yet cherishing in their hearts a pride peculiar to the aristocracy of the mother country. The plotting and counter-plotting, the struggle of pride with love, of sympathy with despair, are delineated with a master hand, reminding the reader of those suitine analyzations so peculiar to Jane Eyre.

This story will be most brilliantly illustrated, and senery introduced will be drawn from nature; the living, sentient being a from the penuit of one of our most distinguished artists. In conclosion of this notice, we will repeat our anxiety to make FRANK LESSLIE'S ILLUSTRATED PAPER the medium of conveying to the family circle, that saired, pay, holy place, such interactives will amuse, instruct and deeply interest, but will at conveying to the family circle, that sacred, bay, holy place, such literature as will armuse, instruct and deeply interest, but will at the same time leave no impression behind but of goodness and of virtue. To accomplish this we shall apare no trouble or outlay; and if we fail ever in our anticipations, it will be because we cannot always, even by lavish expenditure of money and the most unrelenting care, accomplish our most cherished wishes.

A POEM—By Mrs. FRANCIS D. GAGE (Aunt Farny).—The Poet's Dream of Childhood is contrasted with the joy of Labor; the bias of effort; the freedom of attaining; the triumph of overcomita; the fallness of succeeding; and the many other joys of riper years; and counsel is given, that we "look not back but onward ever." The best poem of the season, in this work's Life Licestrated. Richly worth a dollar, but may be had for four cents of any Newsman.
